Jamie Lidell
"Blaming Something"

Visit "Blaming Something" on MotoLyrics.com

Iâ€™m dropping belief in my loneliness
Iâ€™m dropping new york for my loneliness
In this house, for my lack of passion
Been in this town for my backward fashion
The same mistake, that I made, that I made
The same mistake, that I made, that I made
Always blaming something, always blaming something
Going on and on and on and on and on

And it all comes back to me
This time I should take it
Responsibility, for the choices that I make it
Thereâ€™s always a price to pay
For all that come the way
And I donâ€™t wanna be affected no more
I drop in around,
But those cold never ease
I drop in the sky, but I fall back down
I drop in the stars, but now they my eyes
Should drop in the sun, as I burn, burn, burn
Oh, daddy, youâ€™re the one to blame
Same mistake,
The same mistake, that I made, that I made
The same mistake, that I made, that I made

Always blaming something, always blaming something
Going on and on and on and on and on

And it all comes back to me
This time I should take it
Responsibility, for the choices that I make it
Thereâ€™s always a price to pay
For all that come the way
And I donâ€™t wanna be affected no more

Drop in money, for making me hungry
Drop ... the temptation
Drop in my chain, for pulling out of the station
Dropping my clothes, for making me cold
Daddy, youâ€™re the one to blame

And it all comes back to me
This time I should take it
Responsibility, for the choices that I make it
Thereâ€™s always a price to pay
For all that come the way
And I donâ€™t wanna be affected no more
Always blaming something, always blaming something
Always blaming something, always blaming something.

And it all comes back to me
This time I should take it
Responsibility, for the choices that I make it
Thereâ€™s always a price to pay
For all that come the way
And I donâ€™t wanna be affected no more
Always blaming something, always blaming something
Always blaming something, always blaming something.