Why does the color of my coffee match your eyes?
Why do I see you when a stranger passes by?
I swear I hear you in the whisper of the wind
I feel you when the sun is dancin'™ on my skin

And when it's raining
You won't find me complaining 'cuz

When I think about rain, I think about singing
When I think about singing it's a heavenly tune
When I think about Heaven, then I think about angels
When I think about angels, I think about you

The taste of sugar sure reminds me of your kiss
I like the way that they both linger on my lips
Kisses remind me of a field of butterflies
It must be the way my heart is fluttering inside

Beautiful distraction
You make every thought a chain reaction

When I think about rain, I think about singing
When I think about singing it's a heavenly tune
When I think about Heaven, then I think about angels
When I think about angels, I think about you

Anywhere I go, anything I do
Everything around me
Baby, makes me think of you

When I think about rain, I think about singing
When I think about singing it's a heavenly tune
When I think about Heaven, then I think about angels
When I think about angels, I think about you

When I think about rain, I think about singing
When I think about singing it's a heavenly tune
When I think about Heaven, then I think about angels
When I think about angels, I think about you

When I think about rain, I think about singing
When I think about singing it's a heavenly tune

When I think about Heaven, then I think about angels
When I think about angels, I think about you
