It's been a year since you were here
But not a day can pass without
Something coming up to remind me

We plumped the depths and beat the best
But nothing that the rest can say
Will ever let me think of you unkindly

Someday, when you can forgive me
And I can see you as a friend
Someway, we can go back
To the things that we lost at the end

I think you see that you and me
Was better than the rest of the shit
We been sentenced to live in

Now you know that even when
We sunk as low as man could go
Nothing could have felt more like heaven

Someday, when you can forgive me
And I can see you as a friend
Someway, we can go back to the things
That we lost at the end

It's your eyes deep into mine
Making me tremble to touch you
And dig out what's hidden behind

It's your smile, travels for miles
Making me die to be with you
And stay by you just for a while

It's your eyes deep into mine
Making me tremble to touch you
And dig out what's hidden behind

It's been a year, since you were here
But not a day can pass without
Something coming up to remind me
