Comfort In Commotion

Caught up in the clatter
Of a restless mind
It was mind over matter
And it took some time
The words were spilling over
I thought you would care
And when it came down to talking
There was no one there

I'd like to find my way out
To help you lie
If love was like an open door
To set you free
When I could be your outside
From the world you know
You're trapped inside
With nowhere to go

Don't leave me standing here
Stay for a while
My hands are trembling Run away from this world tonight
