Don't dare to tell me how I should live my life. Without you beside me, the one that I desired. The fear of the dark is tearing me apart. My future seems lost now tomorrow's hard to find.

You promised me you'd stay with me, you ran away and lied. You crossed your heart, said hope to die, guess who's just died tonight.

As you start confessing, not all you said was meant. My smile starts to break all over again.

You promised me you'd stay with me, you ran away and lied. You crossed your heart, said hope to die, guess who's just died tonight.

Now all is cold and dark and your breath has just died. And as it died, so did my heart. I've heard that boys don't cry, I'd like to ask Robert why a million tears are bursting from my eyes.

Staying up all night. Counting stars, cruising round, in my car. I drove for miles. Ain't quite the same. We'll never be. In love again.
