hopper painting(janis ian)thought i saw you dancing on the tables late last night high romancing with some college kid thought i saw you waltzing in the blue-grey bistro gloom thought i saw you dancing did you see me, too? i'm the one in the photograph you painted yesterday a high relief reflection of your promises and pain v see me disappearing v like a shadow at high noon v i will follow when you want me to thought i saw you writing like an outlaw on the dunes looking lost in the afternoon cool pretender, with your poetry and blues i remember what it cost just being you now the tarot cards are numbered and the deck is made of glass the dealer's made a bargain with his soul i thought i saw you trembling as you threw it all away thought i saw you dancing but the night had turned to day i'm the one in the photograph you painted yesterday a cool reflection of your promises and pain believe in me before you throw it all away believe in me? i know the way
