Boy, are you a sight for
My pinecone eyes, oh
I'll rest half my head on
Your fireproof belly, oh
And if the morning should ever come
And the wind is blown from your sails
Down to the waves, then
In your gypsy dive
Swim out to the rock
Tease an urchin with my end
And I will sit for you

Boy are you a sight for
My pinecone eyes, oh
I'll rest half my head on
Your fireproof belly, oh
And if the sunset should ever fall
And your dress is worn thin
Down to the waves, then
Dressed in your way
Swim out to the rock
Skim the water at my side
And I will sink for you
