This is the most unusual story, of a most unusual girl
She's the paint in my picture, of a most unusual world
She can crawl out the frame while she's hanging on the wall
And she's calling my name
Shes not so usual, wo
Shes most unusual
Shes not so usual
Shes so unusual
Shes mostly a ghost, the way she watches over me
She complains when I smoke, but then you do the same to me
Shes controlling my brain activity, knowing when i go to sleep
She'll catch you when I'm falling hard
Shes so unusual
Shes not so usual
Shes not so usual
Shes so unusual
Shes not so hooked on the drugs like I thought that she was
And never sucking on the lime, and hardly sipping on the wine
And despite of her bipolar rollercoastering
I think I can trust, she'll keep me singing differently
And it's fine cause she's with me now, most all of the time
Trying to saving my life, thinking none of her own
And always kissing me goodnight when i just need to be alone
Shes so sweet, so discrete, she's exactly what I need
Not even make believe
Shes not so usual
So unusual
Shes not so usual
So unusual
Not so usual, and not to practical either
But she's not so mystical, but not to magical either
But she's not so outta control, and not so used to the flow
Shes not so usual
Nah, she's a natural

Ohhh, she's not so usual
Shes most unusual
Shes so unusual
Shes so unusual
Shes gonna use me ohhh
Shes not so u...
Shes not so u...
Not so u...
Not so....
