Walking down these halls
Voices echo off the walls
Screaming to come back
And of all the things that I lack
But as I wander further on
Thinking you're gone
The darkness presses on
No light to lead me on

But what's that
A red slat
Of light
That I sight
And now
I plow
Through this hall

Because I still love you
And as I pass through
To the next night
I see that, you were right
I can't live without you
But now that I see you
I turn to you
And run
Because I love you
And you don't need to know

These halls are suffocating
These walls are debating
Whether to let me through
But I see your face
As I lose the race
And the trophy is given
And I lose you
My heart is torn
And I can't see
Where this ride will take me

But what's that
A red slat
Of light

That I sight
And now
I plow
Through this hall

Because I still love you
And as I pass through
To the next night
I see that, you were right
I can't live without you
But now that I see you
I turn to you
And run
Because I love you
And you don't need to know

And I can't see
How this will be
And I can't see
Where we will be
When all I can see
Is this empty hall
And I can't see
How this will be
And I can't see
Where we will be
When all I can see
Is this empty hall

But what's that
A red slat
Of light
That I sight
And now
I plow
Through this hall

Because I still love you
And as I pass through
To the next night
I see that, you were right
I can't live without you
But now that I see you
I turn to you
And run
Because I love you
And you don't need to know

And I can't see
How this will be
And I can't see

But I hope you still love me
