After all that he said, after all that he done
What can make you believe that he's still the one Why'd you hide from the truth, when you break down and cry
There's a reason you stay, I just don't know why Would be better off walking away from this
And you won't be alone

When there's nowhere to run, when you're hurting
inside
When you can't carry on, just know there's a place you can hide
Don't you be so afraid of the things he would say
I would stay by your side baby if you leave, let it go
You're gonna find your way home!

I remember that girl, her laugh and her smile
She ain't gone but she's been away for a while No I find it hard to watch and take that away
But there's only so much that I can, can take You know you deserve so much more than this How can I make you feel?

When there's nowhere to run, when you're hurting
inside
When you can't carry on, just know there's a place you
can hide
Don't you be so afraid of the things he would say
I would stay by your side baby if you leave, let it go
You're gonna find your way home!

You should know you deserve so much more (so much more)
So let me take you away
(let me take you away)

When there's nowhere to run, when you're hurting
inside
When you can't carry on, just know there's a place you
can hide
Don't you be so afraid of the things he would say
I would stay by your side baby if you leave, let it go

You're gonna find your way home.
