(Olson/Louris/Perlman)

how could I walk so lonesome how could I aim so wrong all the time you pardoned you held me when I was young and you caught me when I fell you can make it rain and shine never could when I was alone I was on my floor
when I ran you out my door
I, I can't stop
I can't stop those flashing reds the strong, the strongest love the strongest love I ever had you said I hold the door right you said I've gone this far you've been watching over the dreams that kept us from what's real well they seem so foolish now how can I love without you how can I make it through I was on my floor

I, I can't stop
the strong, the strongest love
the strongest love I ever had
I was on my floor
I, I can't stop
the strongest love I ever had
