She's really had enough
She's given in so much
This time it's different once again
All the things he said
Running through her head
It's alright if she don't find out
Now he laughs and waits
And he counts the days
She's gone but he knows that it won't last
She'll come back again he told his friend
She'll crawl like a dog she always has
She rolled her eyes then hit the wall
She said he hasn't changed at all

She don't believe him and she don't want him around
Now she holds his hand
Says that he's her man for the times that he's been so good to her
Will he hurt again she heard from a friend
She don't know but she really can't be sure
Will she figure out what he's all about
Will she see what's in that mind of his
It's made of all those things all the pain he brings
She makes her feel like the dog he is
