I thought that this was love in the right place, but not the right timing
That's why I waited for you patiently, why I'm still here
You promised if I wait that it would be just you and me
That is the joke from which I need to get away from

How could I be so blind to not see this for what it is You just the type that likes to have your cake and eat it Promised the moon and stars while lying with me in my bed push comes to shove you and you've moved onto the next

I thought that this was love
Everything I want
But now I need to get away from
I thought that this was love
Everything I want
But now I need to get away from
Away from you
I need to get away from you

So now it's getting serious you ask if we can just be friends
Hold up a bit ago you couldn't live without me How can you look me in the eye still speaking this nonsense
You changed so much since we shared each other

Wondering how many times you've been this way with someone else
Can't be the two of us if this is how your scheming Why did I wait so long for something that would never come
Promise forever when was it only was a month

I thought that this was love
Everything I want
But now I need to get away from
I thought that this was love
Everything I want

But now I need to get away from
Away from you
I need to get away from you

I need to get away from you
Take me away from you
I wanna be so far from you
Take me away from you
