"The Greatest Good"

Holding on and holding in
Nothing seems to matter when you're Broken up, broken in
Torn apart sitting waiting
Waiting for the day to come
When love will always be what you call home

Scrutinizing your whole life
Questioning the how's and why's
The do's and don'ts, the lies you buy
That keep you from your alibi
Holding on and holding in
But nothing seems to be working

You're painfully waiting
To see the good that lies within this time
I know it will show
To be the greatest good within your life
In time

Cut it out and coming through
Holding tightly onto clues
You feel a presence rising up
Saying enough is enough
Watching so intuitive
What is going on within

Fluctuate from doubt and knowing
But you just, you keep on going

There is something realer than
All that is on the surface
Cut it out and coming through
Getting closer to You

You're purposely waiting
To see the good that lies within this time
I know it will show
To be the greatest good within your life
In time

After the storm

It's always so beautiful
From the grey forms birth a blue full
And like light from the dark
And with Winter Summer and Fall
Springs the difference you need
To know who you are

You're patiently waiting
To see the good that lies within this time
I know it will show
To be the greatest good within

You're patiently waiting
To see the good that lies within this time
I know it will show
To be the greatest good within your life
In time
