I wish I knew how I can tell
That you still hear me
Your laughter has dulled
Your smiles will fade away
I feel it now

"I am right by your side", she told me
"I know right where you are"

Open up all of the curtains in the morning
Let the light shine through
Hang them there until they fall into the evening
When the night comes through

Sit and dream as I wait by the shore
I know you're not coming
I see your face in and out of the waves
I'll let them take you away

"I am right by your side", she told me
"I know right where you are", she told me
"I am right 'cause I know everything in this world Found nothing useful"

Open up all of the curtains in the morning
Let the light shine through
Hang them there until they fall into the evening
When the night comes through

It all shines through
It all shines through
It all shines
It all shines through, hey

Open up all of the curtains in the morning
Let the light shine through
Hang them there until they fall into the evening
When the night comes, night comes, night comes through

Open up all of the curtains in the morning
Let the light shine through

Hang them there until they fall into the evening
When it all shines through
