A bright array of city lights as far as I can see The great white way shines through the night for lonely guys like me
The cabaretes and honky tonks their flashing signs invite
A broken heart to lose itself in the glow of city lights Lights that say forget her name in a glass of cherry wine
Lights that offer other girls for empty arms like mine They paint a pretty picture of a world that's gay and bright
But it's just a mask of loneliness behind those city lights

The world was dark and God made stars to brighten up the night
Did the God who put those stars above make those city
lights
Did he make a place for men to cry when things don't turn out right

Are we just supposed to run and hide behind those city
lights
Lights that say forget her love in a different athmosphere
Lights that lure are nothing but a masquarade for tears
They paint a pretty picture but my arms can't hold them tight
And I just can't say I love you to a street of city lights
