This house is filled with memories of things that used to matter
But somehow they don't seem to be important anymore
But anyway I'm thankful for the mercy of your letter
At least I didn't have to hear the closing of the door
Do you think it's easier to write goodbye that say it Or just afraid that I might change your mind Mhm I might think you still love me darlin' in spite of knowin' better
The little hope I'm clinging to is smooored into the lines Where tears and ink of your goodbye have somehow run together

And covered all the words of love and blatted out forever
Do you think it's easier...
