Thirteen at the table to honor of the man
He broke the bread and he poured the blood red wine He blessed the food and told them this'll be his final supper
And he told them all to love their fellow men

The story starts where it was nearly ended it's the greatest story told to all mankind
We took the only one on earth that ever really matter
And when we were through he had been crucified He was a carpenter who mended broken body brought here by our creators master plan He walked this earth and he never ever tried to hurt another
But when we were through he had been crucified Thirteen at the table...

Well they took him on a cross to a calvary Mary watched the stone by night and day

An angel came and told her on third day he had risen
But watch neighbors cause he's coming back this way Waiting for the day of his returning he's right waiting for the dew to hit the ground You'll never know just when it comes until it's all around you
Let's be prepared when he comes back around Well there'll be thirteen at the table...
Well we'll ever learn to love our fellow men
