The world aint spinning faster
Than you'd like it to go
And as the seasons pass the air gets thin
But you'll continue to grow

And I can't bare
The voices that I wake up to everynight
And morning
I still can't believe that all my life
I've never known much more than this
But I still try
I still try

Cause in the end
The ash falls off the cigarettes
The sun still sets
And I hope you know
That I'll still love you in the morning

When it rises

I wish that we could see the country
But that's not part of your plans
I know that flying's not an option
There's so much weight on your hands

And I want you to know that
I can't stand that I'm away for far too long
And I can't stand
The fact that you're unhappy all the time
I know
I've never hurt much more than this
But I still try

All I know is that you
Make this life so wonderful
