I wish they knew you well
Cause they can't tell you're too deep to drown
And we'll fall if we should
If there is nothing good inside you

And you take your chance
But shield my eyes, for your fading smile will never last

When you're in my hands
I don't understand
When there's no room to fall
When you're in my hands
Tell me who I am
Because I'm torn I have found
When your love's coming around
You will find

That when the nights are faded
When everything gets complicated
Help me to understand
When there's no room to fall in your hands
And I wonder why you hold me
After all the things you told me
Because your eyes only show me
That there's no use if you're not happy

And you take your chance
But shield my eyes, for your fading smile will never last

When you're in my hands
I don't understand
When there's no room to fall
When you're in my hands
Tell me who I am
Because I'm torn I have found
When your love's coming round
You will find.
