Part I

Time stands still in these ancient halls
Only the castle itself can tell what it keeps Dark are the secrets between these walls hidden in shadows of death, while the sorcerer sleeps Where is the morning
where is the sun
Thousand years of midnight
the sunrise is gone
An old man marked by a life so long Is sleeping so sweet while his magic is growing so strong Waiting still for new times to come a thousands years to see if he has won Where is the morning
where is the sun
A thousand years of midnight
the sunrise is gone

Part II

What has he done ?
Why is he sleeping so long ?
He wants to live for evermore Soon is he young
When will he open his eyes ?
When he is strong enough to rule Back in our time goes the legend of a sorcerer so old He drank the blood of the virgin to be reborn Soon a tyrant will conquer So spoke the wise of the day when the sorcerer will rise Blood is his wine
The sorcerer is cheating on time and he'll be stronger than before Cursed be the sun
the women will weep for his fun
In the name of his magic so strong

Part III

A thousand years have gone Armageddon hasn't come Only the cry of a child echoes in the dark Backwards goes time as the stars are passing by and nothing remains of this foolishman except his fate
