By jim carroll and steve linsley

Youre passing, I hear your shadow through the door Its outlined on my shade Like a map of some foreign shore If I could keep that shadow, I could live forever in these

Rooms, the rooms inside my dreams . . . And dreams have kept me in these rooms

Ive never seen her face But Ive memorized each sound . . . The way the wind m eets grace When it's shadows pull her gown

But I could never hear the whispers, Voices cannot reach my room

I live inside my dreams, and dreams Have locked me in these rooms

I have no sense of time. Or even night and day. I left my body Somewhere, somehow it Just got in the way

I guess I always knew These rooms would all lead back to you
