[Verse 1]

Daddy's got a new life now
A new daughter and a new male child
A new swagger wid some real style
New car new house brand new spouse
Little shitty dog named Pouts wid smile on his mouth We'll be straight up we're forgotten cause developed a plan
Once the monkey takes some time to hang with his own fam
Hap' and gay to let ya know he still cares and such Ya won't grow apart too much from bein' outta touch
But he wasn't there for him on the daily ghetto basis
In order to drop jewels I stay clear of the racists Heavy promises became weightless
Sincerity became faintless
He's praying for a Santa A-list
Time is passin' by yet his scars remain ageless
He called him on the phone to say pop's This'll take a minute of ya time
But his wishes were divined
By the disenchanted tone at the end of the line, hang up
He tried to look strong in front of mom back up John stop lookin' forward to the day you gonna see him on Dry ya eye to eye and you'll receive an embrace From a lost heart that's pumpin' blood up to a guilty face
He's gonna try to find ways to make up for the last twenty nine days
Or was it thirty, I think he heard me
In situations like this ya speech becomes wordy
He's got a hundred million ways to tell me not to worry
But this time I wasn't hangin' on his every sentence Ears crippled by the pain and negligence so was the tendence
He spoke I couldn't hear a word I zoned into black I observed
My only thoughts were missin' out on love that I deserved

Tryin' to convince myself I'm weak within the mental The silence breaks because your father's guidance is essential He's lookin' down with a smile sayin' that the future will be great
I don't see that dad, but what about the now?
Johnny come and leave ya dad alone now Yeh it's just you and momma now
Stop the cryin' now, just try to smile now
Try to think of other things now Momma's got another date now
You can get through all the anger and the hate now Calm down and wipe ya face now
I know it seems to be hard but I promise you we'll make it through somehow

[Verse 2]

Little girl their firstborn their sunshine
Never been a reader wrong get it right one time Here's how it goes, she's off to school an' dancin' on her toes
At an hour long ballet class then on to the piano
Two hours of repetition, emulatin' class with music compositions
Do your homework with precision
By nine-o'clock she collapses in a heat of dizziness
But sleep so tomorrow you'll repeat ya busi-ness
She got straight A's a stroke of her stress Throughout her maydays but drawn up out the melees Her mom and dad tryna blame each other different ways she stop and gaze Thinkin' how it drives her crazy when their voices raised
This the web that ruins most of her days
From her perfection was expected an exec that workin' hard without receivin' any raise At night she cries when she lays Then she wakes up, washes up smiles and goes along like it's okay
On to high school, there's more intensity within her cycle
She's makin' all the guys drool
Here comes the extra tight rules
No late, not with college on the plate Practice hard, study hard stay in focus keep ya head straight
Now she's a nervouse wreck, lookin' to collect Anything that she can smoke swallow drink or inject
When she was mentally gone she went to the prom

Had dates and actually could sit down discuss relationships with her mom But tell me how much pressure can a person take Before they break and maybe crush this on a large enough escape
So one night she turned in but stayed up late At her desk with a single piece of paper and a papermate
Here's mom a federal team waked at daybreak
What she saw made her knees shake the death of dear
Kate
The note said here's the future of your fuckin' perfect child
Please be proud I'm livin' for the now
Do your work, clean your room now Take the makeup off your face now
Eat your dinner now, get off the phone now Leave the boys alone now
Saturday night, you stayin' home now
Go to your room and sit alone now Katie with the needle how Look baby momma needs you now
Breathe now, God why did this have to be now

*scratching of line* "And Now!" (until fade)
