

Jim Ed Brown

"Circumstantial Evidence"

Visit "Circumstantial Evidence" on MotoLyrics.com

You were there when he was the same place the same night
I believe them because description fit you right They said the tall vicious blonde with eyes like stars of blue Kissed his lips and laughed at nothing just the way you do
They went on to say you fit in his arms like a glove
That positive identity was you and your old love With tearful eyes you said to me you leave the incidence
And I put you away with circumstantial evidence [steel]
I guess I'll always wonder how many souls have paid As witness after witness prove steps they've never made
Try convicted and condemn for crimes they didn't do

Your old love still cared enough to take the stand for you
He's the only one that came around in your behalf Enough alike to be your twin was his wife's photograph Now the words ring loud and clear newly the incidence Oh and it's lonely here with circumstantial evidence

Visit Jim Ed Brown page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.