When was the last time he kissed you and told you how pretty you are When was the last time you let him embrace you as he whispered I won't go too far When was the last time you told him we just can't go on like we are
But still you agree to let him keep seeing you and you still say I won't go too far Does he feel the same when he holds you does he know how fickle you are The minute you looked at a stranger you'd already come much too far Now here we stand facing each other we're parting you know that we are
But if knowing where I'm at will make you feel better

I promise I won't go too far yes I promise I won't go too far
