Four years ago we came to a place unknown where no one was like you and you were all alone and first impressions were the most important thing to you but somehow you never found out to be yourself is all you have to do so put on that makeup the kind that lets you hide behind the truth the blush and mascara will run just like you then put on that face the one that makes it look like you care and wear it today and everyday be prepared to let someone down so simple it may seem to follow what everyone's doing the hardest is knowing who you are and that you're close yet so far away (at the same time) And when you look back and replay all the past the friends that you once had were yours one day but now all that's left are the memories and secrets kept the goodbyes and high-fives you made that day you gave in (you gave in)
