Hung up here on a web of comfort
Takin' off with nowhere to go
Standin' tall with your new cloak armour
Makin' out like it's all been done

It's harder than it seems
You slip but never fall

They'll take you, where you wont come back to me
They'll take you, where you wont come back to me

Tearin' down what we built up so well
Layin' low as you came my way
Look alive with your head on backwards
Goin' off when there's nothin' wrong

It's only in your dreams
But it felt like it was real

They'll take you, where you won't come back to me
They'll take you, where you won't come back to me

Hang loose my friend, don't walk away from me
'Cause I really think you're cool
Is it worth turning back
Despite these open hands?
You're tearing me apart

They'll take you, where you won't come back to me
They'll take you, where you won't come back to me
They'll take you, where you won't come back to me
(You need to find yourself)
(You need to find yourself)
(You need to find yourself)
(You need to find yourself)
They'll take you, where you won't come back to me
(You need to find yourself)
(You need to find yourself)
(You need to find yourself)
