You're hanging onto all the words that accidentally fell past my lips,
I never meant a thing I said,
You're grasping onto your very last breath,
Making sure before you go that everything is perfect...
And you won't be here to watch it all go down,
You can see from up above what this is all about.
And when I woke I hadn't noticed the lights had changed,
And when I drove through the stop sign had faded,
And you don't ever have to lie,
Just turn around and walk this time.
And you won't be here to watch it all go down,
You can see from up above what this is all about,
And I'll pray...
