I guess it's time, time for me to give up on you I know what i promised, i promised forever but you took the future away Seems like I'm always taking a beating fighting your past and your pain
And it's so fucking cold in your life that it's almost frozen up mine
Lips like addiction alive inside
I'd embrace your twisted love if you let me
But you and i both know that nothings ever good enough for you

To be alive just once again inside of you and your big distrust I'm a jester in your dramas whimpering for your affection
Visualizing extra sexy I'm in junkie mode and it dent stop Coming at you coming at me coming in your face Because love makes it that much better And i know I'm the man who's job you all just shitcanned
But if you'll wake up soon baby, you might realize what's right in your face But until then I'm nothing without you

You've quietly killed all your sleepwalking demons and you've given them all to me I wish I'd learned how to help myself while i was taking care of you

And there is still nothing that i wouldn't do in the realm of keeping your Smile safe
But your love equals lies in the eyes of the ones that you would die for Lips like addiction alive inside
I'd embrace your twisted love if you let me
But you and i both know that nothings ever good
enough for you

You're so fucking wise about yer life yer past yer brain

You've got every other person into two categories Either help you or hurt you there's no in between Either play the part or get out, is that right?
Did you know I'd never leave you forever just to breathe you
And you knew that i could give you all the love you deserved
So still you took all that i could give
And i know you really liked to fuck me
But there's still so much more you never let us explore But it's irrelevant now that your the one that nobody trusts
But what the hell
I'm nothing without you I'm nothing...
