There are times when the winds blow
Every word I cry back again
And it gets hard, hard as I try to find
The strength to even survive

But when I've done all I can do
I can always turn to you

Another shoulder at the wheel to see me through
When the road is long and the tears are real
When I'm past the point of giving up
There's nothing like the feel, of another shoulder at the wheel

In my path, there are stones
I could never roll away alone
There are times when I wake
And my knees will tremble and shake

But there's someone who cares
And when I need you, you'll be there

Another shoulder at the wheel to see me through
When the road is long and the tears are real
When I'm past the point of giving up

Another shoulder at the wheel to see me through
When the road is long, and the tears are real
When I'm past the point of giving up

Oh oh, another shoulder at the wheel
