"Early Morning Grey"

I'm driving through the open roads of hometown
The Junipers are swaying again It's barely 5 o'clock and sunlight's on the loch and nothing's wrong, no nothing's wrong

I've been working day and night for this moment Since I shed those leaves of doubt It's here I want to stay, in the early morning grey
And I can't change, no I can't change

No more running at the moon in all it's splendour her face haunted me I'm staying where the days will seem much longer
In the early morning grey.

There's something in this season so golden something in the lay of this land If only you and me were the child I can see we'd be all right I'm standing on the fringe of the ocean the century is closing at last It's here I want to stay in the early morning grey
and I can't change, no I can't change.
