Imagine a place where you don't need a name and you don't need a licence to open your mind It's a travelling circus of jokers and clowns a movie picture that's one of its kind and this place is the only place where even the clergy dance in the rain and I know if I was stronger I'd change my ways and join the parade with yo u.

Dirty face and oily hands, but adamant of life so clean and so pure and in a perfect world the rights of man could never betray the rights of the land and this way is the only way a pilgrim's walk a hail of song and I know if I were stronger I'd change my ways and join the parade with you.

From the backstreets of this island, move on, move on To the walkways of the mainland move on.
