The Dreaming Sea
flexes in the lilac light and you're the moon and I'm the tide cradle my head kiss me like you wish me dead breathe life into me till I feel as though I'll never sleep again to close my eyes and feel the whole world swim till I don't know where you end, where I begin
the dreaming sea
whispers its too late to be saved the next kiss could be the ninth wave the bluff clouds swell (spin) rain drops like pennies in a well we spiral down into the deep till I feel as though I'll never sleep again
to close my eyes and feel the whole world swim
till I don't know where you end, where I begin till I don't know where you end, where I begin

you and me upon the bare teeth of the rock at the mercy of the dreaming sea
till I feel as though I'll never sleep again
to close my eyes and feel the whole world swim
till I don't know where you end, where I begin
till I don't know where you end, where I begin
