Take a breath, I close my eyes
I am lost but try to find
What it is in this life that gives me strength enough To fight for something more

Well, God knows my feet are aching And I've got mountains ahead to climb

One way at a time I'll try to lend these broken hands of mine
Give my strength, be my light
One way at a time these walls will fall and fill our empty souls
Give me strength, help me guide these broken hands
of mine

The sky is gray, it clouds your world
Clear the air, child, break the mold
I find a place in your heart
To build a shelter from this cold and winding road

Well, God knows you're barely standing But you've got to carry this heavy load

One way at a time I'll try to lend these broken hands of
mine
Give my strength, be my light
One way at a time the peace will grow and fill our empty souls
Give me strength, help me guide these broken hands
of mine
Oh, these broken hands of mine

What if there's more
What if there's more
What if there's more than this What if there's more out there?

One way at a time I'll try to lend these broken hands of
mine
Give my strength, be my light

One way at a time the peace will grow and fill our
empty souls
Give me strength, help me guide these broken hands
of mine
These broken hands of mine
