(Tony Joe White)

It was said of the sheriff to Calhoun Parrish
Not to ever touch his daughter Anna-Lee
For to look at her with lustful eyes was certain
To get you a time in the penitentiary.

It was true, she was quite hilarious, it was true, she had eyes for me
Then one night at a dance she walked up to me
And ask me would I, please, meet her down by the creek

As I listened to her dangerous proposal
I thought about the high sheriff catching me
As I shook my head and quietly left the party
I heard her laugh and say "You'll be sorry"

Then came upon my door a loud disturbance
I opened it to the sheriff and his deputy.
He said, "Son, did you molest my daughter ?"
I said, "Sheriff, I do not know of what you speak."

Then he grabbed me roughly by the collar
And he flung me sprawling out into the street
There were days in the jail with claustrophobia
And all on that kind of a beach Anna-Lee.

When I finally worked a bar loose from my window
And I made my way into the woods of Calhoun
Late at night I came upon the cabin
It was the home of Jaime Cross, a friend I knew.

Would you mind if I sat down at your table
'Cause it's been a while since I've had time to eat
And I'll pay y'all back when I'm able
But right now the high sheriff is after me.
