

Joe Dassin

"Lustful Earl And The Married Woman"

Visit "Lustful Earl And The Married Woman" on MotoLyrics.com

(Tony Joe White)

Now, big Earl Bradshaw, he was a lone wolf, he was always on the prowl
And when he'd go out to find a woman, you could hear his awful howl

Ahooo hoo hoo hoo hoo hoo, ahoohoo hoo hoo hoo hoo hoo hoo
Baby I'm comin' for you, ahoohoo ahoohoo

Now, Lucy Dorsey, she was a pretty thing
But you know, she was married
Whenever she see him, old big Earl coming She'd hide the ring she was wearing

Ahooo hoo hoo hoo, all right, this went on every night
Big Earl would howl for more
But then one night there came a-poundin' on the door.

There went her husband, he knocked the door down
And he grabbed her ferociously
She said, "Earl, honey, would you call the police
'Cause I believe, he's a-killin' me"

He turned on Earl with the gun, there was no chance to run
He said, "You've had it, son"
But he'd missed and shot him through the knee.

Well, old Earl, he jumped out the window
He was naked and limping down the road
And you could hear him howling in the distance
But he sounded like a wounded toad

"Ahoohooie, why did you shoot me in the knee?
I was just trying to do the thing that comes naturally !"

Visit Joe Dassin page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.
