

Joe Ely "Row Of Dominoes"

Visit "Row Of Dominoes" on MotoLyrics.com

(Butch Hancock)
Carmen must have been the Devils daughter
At least he taught her how to wear her clothes
And the boys folled her to the slaughter
Where they fell like a row of dominoes
They fell like a row of dominoes
Don't let your past drive you under
You know how a memory comes and goes
Well the years rolled away just like thunder
Where they fell like a row of dominoes
They fell like a row of dominoes
Won't you tell me how you been
Something more than you've been feelin fine
I'm havin that feelin again
There's a whole lot more to lay on the line
A whole lot more to lay on the line
Share and share alike you know I love you
But I also love the way the wild wind blows
So don't set your dreams up there above you
Where they'll fall like a row of dominoes
They'll fall like a row of dominoes
They say a fool never knows what he misses
And a wise man never misses what he knows
What can I say your ten thousand kisses
Fell on me like a row of dominoes
They fell like a row of dominoes

Won't you tell me how you been
Something more than you've been feelin fine
I'm havin that feelin again
And the dominoes are standin in a line
Yes the dominoes are standin in a line

Visit Joe Ely page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.