Written by Tony Haselden
One two three, step two three
Whenever they're waltzing
He still counts out loud
She's tried to teach him
But the rhythm doesn't reach him
So they bounce through the crowd
But oh won't you look at them smiling
Not worried that they're out of time
He steps on her toes, she giggles and goes on 'Cause love is forgiving and kind
Their hearts are dancing
To the love song that's played from the moment they met
Their hearts are dancing
In time with a tune love won't ever forget
Their gold anniversary
He toasted the family
And said, time flies when it's fun
And here's to my sweet wife
Who's made ours a great life
I'm the luckiest one
And though there was no music playing
He reached out and she took his hand
He counted to three as he waltzed he could see There's still magic in those golden bands
Their hearts are dancing
To the love song that's played from the moment they
met
Their hearts are dancing
In time with a tune love won't ever forget
Their hearts are dancing
To the love song that's played from the moment they
met
Their hearts are dancing
In time with a tune love won't ever forget
