I've had my share of lovers
But they always left me cold
You're so different from the others
You're the only one I want to hold

And I thought love was like the moonlight
Always fading with the dawn
But you just might be the one
To prove me wrong

Morning light shines through the window
And I wake up to see your face
I don't care which way the wind blows
Here is where I want to stay

And I thought love was like the moonlight
Always fading with the dawn
But you just might be the one
To prove me wrong
But you just might be the one
To prove me wrong
