In a classroom somewhere alone
Looking at the window scene
Tune out the tutor in me
Sun is goin' down through the line of trees, I day dream

And in my head I walk along
All of the paths we have been on
There is a chance to bridge the line

Between two points ruptured in time
You lived your life like nothin' else mattered
And now you're torn, torn to tattered

And I don't need any apology
And you know, I don't need any apology
And it's a long walk away
Oh, it's a long walk away
Oh torn tattered, torn

Certain things make me feel, like it was when we could steal
The magic of moments real
Revisit, remember, reunion re-ember
The white smell of burning leaves
Walk along now

Happy new year Charlie Brown
You're full of hope with your head down
And you only have one eye to see

The other's closed and too scared to peak
And silence of the heart can leave you shattered
And now you're torn, torn to tattered

And I don't need any apology
And you know, I don't need any apology
And it's a long walk away
Oh, it's a long walk away
Oh torn tattered, torn tattered

Through the line of trees I dream
Of only good remembering

And I think of you and was it

Was it ever so bad my friend?

And what was

What was ever so bad my friend?

And in my head I walk along

All of the paths we should be on

The sun is down, enjoyed the dream

I'm full of hope, that you think of me

I think of you and how much you mattered

When I'm torn, torn to tattered

And I don't need any apology

And you know, I don't need any apology

And it's a long walk away

Oh, it's a long walk away
