Truth is I never was young
Shot like a bullet from a rusty old gun
I could never find the straight and true
Honey, baby till I found you

I ain't saying I ever grown up, girl
Oh, I'm the biggest baby in the world
I know you can say a lot about that
But you're so sweet you keep it under your hat

Honey, I'm still the same old man
That you married way back when
A few less brain cells, a lot less hair
Honey, tell me do you still care?

I love you more than I ever did
I love you just like a little kid
Guess I'll always be your biggest fan
Honey, I'm still the same old man

We been down a rough road or two
This is another one we'll get through
Don't ask me how I know
I'm just saying baby, please don't go

'Cause I can still sparkle up your eyes
And you can still cut me down to size
Please take me as I am
Honey, I'm still the same old man

Honey, I'm still the same old man
That you married way back when
A few less brain, a lot less hair
Honey, tell me do you still care

I love you more than I ever did
I love you just like a little kid
I guess I'll always be your biggest fan
Honey, I'm still the same old man

You start out trying to change everything
You wind up dancing with who you bring

I loved you then and my love still stands
Honey, I'm still the same old man
