

John K. Samson

"The Last And"

Visit "The Last And" on MotoLyrics.com

So, I'm the first one in again, with the quiet and the window growing snow, when I hear the furnace rouse itself from its slumber, somehow suddenly I know, as my eye stops on one curled up in my lesson plan
that I'm just your little ampersand.
When your voice springs from the intercom with announcements, and reminders, and a prayer, I remember how you made me feel,
I was funny, I was thoughtful, I was rare, but like the jokes about my figure kids think that I don't understand I know I'm just your little ampersand After christmas holiday you never asked to drive me home again sometimes in the staff room I catch your eye with "why'd it have to end," but I know from how you worry at your wedding band
that I'm just your little ampersand
At the last conjunction after every other and I was just your little ampersand

Visit John K. Samson page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.