Can you honestly expect me to take you seriously
When you've put nothing on the line at all
When you say you can't believe in believing
Are you setting yourself up to fall
And I will not wish for someone to save me

Watching you come
Then pass you by Something inside
Is keeping the fear alive

And I will not come to you
I will not come to you
I will not come to you, I
I won't give nothing for such antireflection
Such high expectation will burn in you hands

Do you recognize when people break you down
And there is no time to build another wall
Well you walk fast, and you talk fast
But you don't move at all

And I will not come to you
I will not come to you
I will not come to you, I
I won't give nothing for such antireflection
Such high expectation will burn in you hands

You said, you said it's the wrong time, it's the wrong time
And things go by in the meantime, in the meantime

And I will not come to you
I will not come to you
I will not come to you, I
I will not come to you
I will not fall with you
I will not come with you
Nothing is wrong with you
You can't deliver at all (?) in the future
And nothing will come to you

Nothing will come to you
Nothing will come to you
Nothing will come to you
Such high expectation will burn in you hands
