(Troubadour troubadour troubadour)

The troubadour the troubadour sings from his heart

The song that's the hit of the show

Watch him sing and play the strings of his guitar alone in the bright spotlight's glow

The song was for someone he loved so true

Who loved him then left him for someone new

The troubaour the troubadour smile as he sings but his heart is breaking in two

[guitar]

They beg for more the troubadour sings once again

The song that's the hit of the show

in the bright spotlight's glow

There is a hush in the darkened hall a few hearts are heavy and teardrops fall

But in the crowd one head is bowed for the troubadour

And oh her heart aches most of all

Troubadour troubadour her heart aches most of all
