O Lady Liberty
You cast your light to a stormy sea
You offer visions of a golden Rainbow for all to see

You offer hopes of freedom and prosperity
To the world but they are blinded and can not see That this vision that you offer comes at a cost and is not free
You offer entry to a land of poverty

Freedom and justice are only for those who can afford to pay
You don't mention that this is the American way.

Our flag used to have integrity But is now only a tattered remnant of what it used to be.

Our I'll sleep in the streets with clothes that are tattered and torn You turn your head in Self-righteous contempt and scorn

Turn off your light and let darkness rule the day

There is no Land of Liberty left here today
