(Jerry Foster - Bill Rice)

In almost every tavern her name's a household word
She never once get lonely from all the thing I've heard
She never was a woman who could stand to be alone
But she's mine and all that matters is she's there when I come home.

She's always there when I come home
The way a way should be
Her gentle kisses let me know
She's still in love with me.

Can't help it 'cause I love her she can't help what she is If anybody wants her while I'm gone then she's his I'd rather die than lose her so I'll just along Cuse the only love I care about is there when I come home.

She never was a woman
Who could stand to be alone
But she's mine and all that matters
Is she's there when I come home...
