We had a meeting at the farmer's market and talked over a bottle of wine
A parliament; my cigarette, he sparked it
And I knew I was playing with fire Man, I shouldn't have come here alone
I've been looking for love in all the wrong places
Been telling myself I'm grown
But when I look in his eyes I'm his girl and he knows it
You kiss like you love me now
You know I can't tune that out
Your frequency hits me less frequently
I have to haunt your dreams
You can't stay mad at me
Just cuz we're "supposed to be" don't mean we're gonna be
You can still break my heart even if we're only messing around
Something's different now
I'm just thinking out loud
And I try to be cool but my feelings keep pulling me down
I'm different now
I'm just thinking out loud

Got my armor you can call me heartless but I'm the one ya leavin behind
I tried to finish but we never started
To get this thing right out of my mind
I shouldn't come here alone
When we do the wrong thing it hurts sometimes
But it feels like I'm coming home
When I look in his eyes I'm his girl and he knows it

Making love to me now
You know I can't tune that out
Your frequency hits me less frequently
I had to haunt your dreams
You can't stay mad at me
Just cause we're supposed to be don't mean we're gonna be
You can still break my heart even if we're only messing around

Somethings different now
I'm just thinking out loud
And I try to be cool but my feelings keep holding me
down
I'm different now
I'm just thinking out loud.
