All across the scenes the statues crumble
Cherish the seconds, counting the days
And people move with lines across thier faces
Embracing each other with a smile

For sanitys sake
For sanitys sake
Yeah

We'll remember distant times and places
We'll remember summer sun, that yeilds
Shed our bodies, hearts and souls for loves' sake
Civilisations wax and wane
Innocence will fade away like Autumn
Likewise the dream of youth, the task
And we shall be at peace upon our parting
With the thoughts of loved ones in our hearts
For sanitys sake
For sanitys sake

So let the sunrise, light up our distant shores
And we'll remember
Last days of Rome again
