Rover, move over now
Daddy's home from the war
I have been in this dog house

A few times before
She still gets so mad somehow
White lies told in vein
I didn't know these clouds
Could bring so much rain

You try to say you're sorry
At least a hundred times
But she replays mistakes you've made
With a photographic mind
She's your judge and jury
And you ain't been pardoned yet
You might find forgiveness, boy
But women never forget

I played the Romeo
I played the lover boy
And she came into my house
And threw away my toys
Oh, brother don't you know
Memories are built to last
As you walk into your future
You're gonna bump into your past

You try to say you're sorry
At least a hundred times
But she replays mistakes you've made
With a photographic mind
She's your judge and jury
And you ain't been pardoned yet
You might find forgiveness, boy
But women never forget

You better face up the truth
Everybody plays the fool
Get down on your knees
'Cause her love's worth the blues

You try to say you're sorry
At least a hundred times
But she replays mistakes you've made
With a photographic mind
She's your judge and jury
And you ain't been pardoned yet
You might find forgiveness, boy
But women never forget
