A stone sculpted body lies slumped on a cross now
To feed the collective, who he claims he will save now
We wait for him to save the world.
The carrion birds came and tore out the poor eyes
And the people all saw light and flocked round it like flies
Waiting for him to change the world.
God save all the children who cry now in hunger
God damn non believers and burn them in anger.
Burn them in anger.
And the pain twists their bodies in the name of the saviour
Who will someday return home and save all the sinners who
Wait for him to save the world
God damn all the liars and their promises breaking
We can sit and do nothing while the millions are dying and
Wait for him to save the world.
